Mrs. Brown & Mrs. Delucchi's Shark Bites

Tech Support Needed

We are continually hearing about tech issues from a handful of families. Please do the following, as recommended by TUSD tech support:

1. Install Teams Updates (Mrs. Delucchi sent directions via email and Dojo)
2. Restart your devices every couple days
3. Move closer to the router/hot spot

If these steps don't resolve your issue, please bring the device to school so we can do further troubleshooting and fix the issue.

Daily Journals

We are coming to the end of the 2nd trimester, and we are expecting more effort and work to be completed in the daily journals. Starting this month, if journal entries are incomplete/missing, without dates and other classwork is not in the journal, points will be taken. In order to earn an S or better, all work must be submitted in the journal in a neat and orderly fashion. In this limited instructional setting, the journal is one of the few pieces of concrete work we can use to assess your child. Please help to ensure all work is done daily.

Must See Student Work, Not Parent Work

As mentioned in the Journal newsletter blurb, we are nearing the 3rd trimester. This means our expectations are increasing. We must see students' eyes on our screen at all times, not talking to family members during class. Students must write their OWN work in the journal and on the white board. Students must hold up their own work to show us. While we know it is hard to let our kids struggle and work things out on their own, now is the time to let your little birdies fly! This will allow us to properly assess their skills so that we can plan and prepare future lessons. Thank you for your support and cooperation.
